38
& BANYAN
In art we live

The story of the 38 that grew around the banyan.

“Steel and concrete support architecture. But for it to be really spectacular, its true foundation must be wonder.”

A tree-filled space, in the heart of the city. And thirty-eight luxury apartments, comprising twenty-nine 3 BHKs and nine 4 BHKs, that surround a 150 year old banyan tree. It's more of a sculpture than a structure. Because we all need more art in our lives.

*CGI artist's impression

It starts with the trees.

You're walking through leaves of grass, under a sky framed by trees. With every step you take, Bangalore slips further and further away. Which is strange and baffling because you're right in the heart of it all, near Indiranagar, which has long been Bangalore's heart.

And yet, at the same time, you're being enveloped by a sort of peace you don't usually find in a city – whether you're in its heart, or its toes for that matter.

It's the trees, you think.

Of course it's the trees.

They are gorgeous in themselves, and together, they're magic.

And as you're thinking this, you see – for the very first time – the banyan tree, the queen of them all. It's 150 years old. It's music frozen in time.

But you also see something else. A sculpture, rising behind the tree. It's curved and smooth, embracing this setting, enhancing it.

It's modern human art meeting nature's art.

And it takes your breath away.
